

REACH Spring Newsletter

New projects, new beginnings!

The days are finally getting longer and new ideas are blooming...

Dear REACH community,

We've had a great start to 2024 here at REACH. The team are working on BiliNEST, PEAR DROPS and the Oral Fluid Challenge project. BiliNEST looks at jaundice assessment in infants of different skin tones across London, PEAR DROPS examines the rostered time paediatric trainees are able to spend on research and professional development, and the Oral Fluid Challenge project aims to streamline the thorny issue of fluid challenge protocols across our region.

Of course, we're also celebrating our other projects which have enjoyed amazing success. The FIRE study was presented at the RCPCH Conference in Birmingham, and data from the PEAR study was mentioned in a workshop as well! Elsewhere, Eva and Michelle presented at a London School of Paediatrics showcase about our Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Report as we keep trying to widen access to research attainment. We'll be picking these issues up as we present at a Royal Society of Medicine & Soft Landings event in June.

There's always too much to fit in one newsletter, but keep checking our website for more opportunities and results.

Very best,

Team REACH

REACH @ RCPCH Conference

We had a great time at the RCPCH Conference, attending some fascinating presentations and meeting friends old and new.

REACH had a big year this year - an oral presentation for Rose and Steph with the EIRE project, and workshops with Neelakshi and the PEAR results. A huge thank you to all our project teams without whom none of this would be possible!

Did you miss the conference? Not to worry - keep an eye on our Publications and Presentations page for results.

REACH! You're a star...

We've celebrated some more REACH Stars including Hermione Leach for swift data collection, and Rose Hartzenberg and Steph Habermann for their presentation at the RCPCH Conference! It's been lovely to hear about the wonderful work you all do, and we're looking forward to more Stars in the future...

BiliNEST needs you!

BiliNEST is an exciting new project looking at detection and assessment of jaundice in babies with different skin tones.

We're looking for someone to help with analysis of jaundice assessment guidelines - this is a great opportunity to develop analytical skills and compare practice and clinical care pathways across London. We aim to present our findings in publications and conferences, regionally and nationally. If you're interested, email us!

We're on YouTube!

Bringing research to all paediatricians has always been a core value of REACH. That's why we've decided to put our educational content on a new YouTube channel, so you can watch and learn from the academic greats whenever, wherever.

Head over to our channel to catch up on Dr Bob Phillips's session where he takes us through all things literature review and some brilliant tips to get an Archimedes review published in Archives of Disease in Childhood, and subscribe for more educational goodies...

New at REACH...

Review Team Member

Our Oral Fluid Challenge (OFC) project is looking at current practice in use of oral fluid challenges across London to see how this could be improved.

The team is now carrying out a systematic review of current practice in paediatric OFCs, and is looking for a review team member to help with the focussed task of literature screening. This would be great experience in literature reviews (Domain 11 in the Progress Plus curriculum!) and work with a wonderful team.

Email us if you're interested!

REACH Systematic Review Hub - Coming Soon!

We're currently setting up a REACH-led hub for systematic reviews. This aims to match up trainees who are interested in the same topics, and make the process of designing and completing a successful review a bit easier.

If you've got an idea for a review, sit tight and watch this space!

REACH RESEARCH NOTICEBOARD

If you would like to advertise an opportunity please e-mail us at reachnetworkldn@gmail.com.

Copyright © REACH Network London 2022, All rights reserved.

Visit our website: www.reachnetworkldn.com

E-mail us: reachnetworkldn@gmail.com

Want to change how you receive these emails?

You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list.

